

Chick-fil-a - A tasty breakfast

Sierra Gavin '25

If you want to start your morning off right, then Chick-Fil-A is for you! Located in Polaris, Ohio, it is a very short drive for most students around our school. It's a short 15 minute drive but nothing is too long for the chick-n-minis. Chick-fil-a has a welcoming and friendly environment that makes people want to keep coming back. Their drivethrough is very efficient, you order and pay at the same place which keeps the line moving and gets everyone there food faster. You'll get through Chick-fil-a a lot faster than most drivethroughs like canes.

The original Chick-fil-a is based in Harper, Georgia in 1946. Truett Cathy, the founder of Chick-fil-a, opened up the company with hopes to create a quality service restaurant and the signature Chicken sandwich. It took some work to make the perfect sandwich but he took a hand breaded, perfectly seasoned chicken breast and put it on a toasted, buttery bun. He still uses the same recipe to this day and the company has grown into the nation's top chicken chain.

An amazing aspect of Chick-fil-a and my personal favorite is their breakfast menu. The menu is only available until 10:30am. The menu includes many varieties of chicken sandwiches, Hash browns, and fruits. The menu also includes many tasty drinks that would go perfect with your meal like iced coffee, orange juice, and chocolate milk.

The Chick-n-minis are definitely the most popular item on their breakfast menu but for good reason. The perfectly seasoned, crispy chicken inside a buttery warm roll topped with a honey Butter spread. I would rate these a 4 out of 5 because it was the perfect combination of sweet and Crispy. While the mini sandwiches were very tasty they only give four in each meal so it did leave me still feeling a little hungry.

The hash browns are a hidden gem in my opinion. This is definitely something that is more simple but they were cooked perfectly with just the right amount of salt and crispness. I would rate these a 5 out of 5 because they were the perfect side for my Chick-n-minis.

The Polaris Chick-fil-a is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. everyday. Chick-fil-a is closed on Sundays. They offer many options to get your food such as dining-in, curbside pickup, drive through, catering, and delivery. I would rate this location a 5 out of 5 because this location always has such long lines yet I still get through the line in less than 10 minutes due to how efficient they are. The staff is always very friendly and efficient especially when you dine in! For more information about, visit <https://www.chick-fil-a.com>

Fondueing it with you : the Melting Pot experience

Malia Mulig '25
December 6, 2022

If you want a fun night, with delectable food, then make your way down to Easton Town Center to eat at the Melting Pot. It is a 30 minute drive, but Berlin students, if you're looking to celebrate a birthday or a special occasion, this fondue restaurant is for you. The Melting Pot has a formal dining experience yet ties in the informal private atmosphere at your table.

The first Melting Pot restaurant opened in April 1975 in Maitland, Florida. The menu only contained 3 items, swiss cheese, beef fondue and then a chocolate fondue. One of the waiters, Mark Johnston, worked at the original Melting Pot, then opened the second Melting Pot in Tallahassee with permission of the owners. Followed in 1985 Mark and his brothers got full ownership of the Melting Pot and have been working to make this restaurant their full vision while also expanding as a franchise.

The Melting Pot at Easton Town Center is underground. The stairs were nice but then you walk down and it's this red carpeted room, had a lot of open closets with random stuff. My boyfriend and I were seated 5 minutes after checking in for our reservations. The actual dining room was nice, it was low lighting, and not loud, but not awkwardly quiet. The waiter was very nice. The only part he lacked was the explanation of how to cook the meat, but other than that he was so good at providing service and checking in just the right amount. I would rate the service a 4.7 out of 5.

My boyfriend and I ordered a four-course dinner for two. Our night started with ordering the Bourbon Bacon Cheddar cheese. It wouldn't be my go-to cheese on the menu but definitely was worth the hype. This cheese was slightly buttery, it melted in your mouth but had a thick consistency. It paired perfectly with the bread slices and broccoli in my opinion. Now the carrots were one of the veggies that did not at all go with this cheese, personally I think the carrot should have never been on the platter and replaced with something better that complemented the cheese. I would rate the first course a solid 4.9 out of 5.

We continued our night by ordering the Caesar Salad for the second course. The description for this salad was that it would have the lettuce, pecans, cheese, garlic seasoning, with some croutons and then topped off with caesar dressing. This salad in fact tasted and looked like it had absolutely no dressing on it. So I basically just ate lettuce with cheese. I do have to say the croutons that came on top had the perfect crunch and seasoning. I would have liked to enjoy the croutons with my salad but ended up eating them by themselves. I would rate the salad a 2 out of 5.

The third course was the entree, we ordered the classic

Memphis style dry rub pork, teriyaki marinated steak, garlic pepper steak, herb crusted chicken breast. After we picked the meat we then got to pick the type of broth to cook it in. We went with the waiter's opinion and went with the Coq Au Vin which was a Burgundy wine, with mushrooms, scallions, and garlic. My favorite meat was the garlic pepper steak, it was just so easy to cook, and was perfectly tender and flavorful. Another favorite was the shrimp, the shrimp paired so well with the Coq Au Vin but it was hard to tell if the shrimp was fully cooked or not. The chicken was seasoned very well and appetizing. The pork was hard and had a lot of fat. It was the hardest thing to cook and the dry rub seemed like it came off when put into the pot to cook. I would rate the third course a 4.7 out of 5.

The course was coming to an end with the final, chocolate fondue. The toughest decisions were between the yin and yang or the flaming turtle. Both sounded delicious but we decided on the yin and yang because it looked cool. The yin and yang was a dark chocolate and white chocolate mixture. Both chocolates were rich and creamy and would have honestly eaten spoonfuls of it.

The yin and yang came with a variety of dippers, strawberries, bananas, rice krispies, pound cake, brownie, cookie, marshmallows. The fresh fruit mixed with the dark chocolate was so delicious. I tried the brownie and was unexpectedly shocked at how good it tasted with the white chocolate and dark chocolate. That combo was so extraordinarily good for such simple sweets. Then the cookie and pound cake was also a very luscious combo with the chocolate. I personally hate marshmallows so I didn't even try it with the chocolate. The rice crispy treat was okay, I thought they could have chosen something else to go with the chocolate that I couldn't easily get at the store. The last course finished off the night, and I rate it a 4.9 out of 5.

The Melting Pot is located in Columbus, Ohio. It is opened 4-9pm. Monday through Thursday but on Fridays it is opened till 9:30 p.m.. On the weekends it is opened 12:00 through 9:00/9:30 pm. They offer an interactive dine-in experience or a take-out option. I would rate this location a 4.5 out of 5. This experience is definitely one for the memory books. Was the perfect way to celebrate my boyfriend and I's 2 month anniversary. For more information about the Melting Pot visit <https://www.meltingpot.com/>.

American experience: Texas Roadhouse hits again with the great food.

Mailys 26

If an entertaining, delicious, and full-on American experience sounds good to you, then Texas Roadhouse is the place for you! Opened in 1993, Texas Roadhouse is welcoming to everyone. When I first moved to the U.S, Texas Roadhouse was the spot to show our families! It demonstrates the American atmosphere and superb American food. The first Texas roadhouse was opened in 1993 in Clarksville Indiana by Kent Taylor. All the food there is handcrafted and has been on the menu for ages. When Kent Taylor invented Texas Roadhouse, he wanted a place where everyone would feel welcomed. That's why this restaurant also has a great ambiance because the servers love their jobs and know what they're doing.

A positive thing about Texas Roadhouse is the hosting. They have a great sign-up system where you can sign up for a waitlist and wait in your car so you don't have to wait in a long line inside the restaurant. As we arrived we immediately got hosted and taken to our table where our waiter came very quickly to our table to take our orders.

After ordering, our drinks came almost immediately. Our waiter was very sweet and he helped us with the menu because we always have trouble choosing something from their amazing menu! He was very patient as he took our order and checked up on us very often. The drinks were very refreshing and we never had to wait for a second glass.

The peanuts and the rolls are one original appetizer that made Texas roadhouse famous. The peanuts used to be in buckets before covid. Now, they are in individual small bags that reduce the waste of food and are more sanitary for everyone. The peanuts were fun to crack open and they tasted salty and satisfying to the taste. When we arrived, we were warned that the rolls weren't cooked yet so we had to wait for them to come out. A few minutes later our waiter came and asked us if we still wanted bread which we said yes to. They came in and they were buttered, warm and they were crispy on the outside and soft on the inside. Overall I would give the starters 9/10.

Usually, people who eat at Texas roadhouse go there for their pieces of meat. But this time I ordered an "all-American cheeseburger" which was accompanied by hand-cut steak fries. I also had a caesar salad. Starting with the salad, was disappointing. The salad had very little sauce, so I had to order a second caesar sauce. There were only 2 croutons in my salad and barely any cheese that they usually put on top. The lettuce tasted watery and was overall a 4/10. Now when the burger came it looked very appetizing. When I took my first bite the steak was juicy and the cheese was melty and comforting. The burger doesn't come with any sauce inside, so I think they should add an aioli or a homemade ranch to the burger to make it even more delicious. But overall my main meal is a 9/10.

After we ate it came time to pay, the price was correct and not too bad for very good food. In total, we got 4 meals and 4 soft drinks and the price came to $74 not including tip included. With very good hosting and fast-ready food, I would come back. I felt very welcomed and taken care of in the restaurant. The overall rating would be 8/10. The food was good, except for the salad but I don't expect a steak restaurant to serve good salads. Our experience there was great and I leave a positive note on the restaurant. For more information about the restaurant go to texasroadhouse.com for rewards, merch and gifts.

Ruckus Pizza Restruant, is it worth the drive?

Riley Kern '25

December 8, 2022

If you are looking for a fun, casual restaurant with countless different foods to choose from, Ruckus Pizza Restaurant is the place to go. Although located in North Carolina, Ruckus has perfected their menu, and their recipes. Their slogan, "We got something for everyone," is more than true with their countless items such as sushi, pizza, wings, salads, and even tacos. Even though I wouldn't recommend the 8 hour drive just to visit this restaurant, if you are ever in the area, Ruckus is a must.

Ruckus is located in four areas; Costco Plaza Apex, Mission Valley Raleigh, Park West Morrisville, and Tryon Village Cary. These series of restaurants were created around 15 years ago by the owners Robert, Ashley, Amy, and Ryan who wanted to create a restaurant that fitted them at the time, "Fresh out of college and ready to have a good time". They believe that their restaurant is a place for great food, great music, and a great time.

When I received the menu, I was overwhelmed with all of the options. There was food from all different types of cultures such as the Tulum sushi roll or the Brisket Tacos. The reviews for all of the food were off the charts, but after I had just played my final soccer game of the weekend, I wanted something unhealthy and simple.

Along with most of my team, I ordered the Chicken finger appetizer for my main meal. This appetizer is served with a choice of dipping sauce and a basket of fries. Knowing that there was a lot of us, and that our food would probably take a while, I also ordered the Ruckus Nachos appetizer as my actual appetizer and it is served with queso, their famous chili, tomato, onion, lettuce, pico, guacamole, and sour cream. And finally, as my drink, I ordered a diet coke.

The Nachos were my favorite part of the night. I was shocked when I saw the mountain of chips and sauces that appeared at my table. The creamy queso was layered throughout the stack, with the chili and other condiments piled on top. I wanted to save my appetite for my main meal, so I had my teammates help me finish the giant pile of nachos. The chips were both perfectly crunchy and a little soft from the queso, guacamole, and chili. The guac and queso added saltiness while the chili was a little sweet which balanced out the meal perfectly. Although I couldn't really taste the tomato, onion, lettuce, and pico, they still added to the already delicious meal with the different textures and the little flavor that I could taste. I would rate this Appetizer a five out of five stars, and if I ever visited again, I would get this as my main meal.

Even though my main meal came out very late, it was still delicious. I was one of the last to get my plate, so the mouth watering smell and appetizing look of the chicken and fries made me excited to eat. I instantly dug in when my meal came, and I went straight to the fries. They were perfectly crispy when you bit into them, and almost tasted like mashed potatoes on the soft inside. Although, the chicken did not live up to the rest of my evening. It was almost a little hard and chewy, but it was still very good and would order again if I got the chance, which gives it a four out of five stars.

This dine-in restaurant offers an amazing experience with a beautiful outside dining patio and also offers many fun events such as a current event coming up on December 13 where you can dine with Santa. I loved the staff, and even with my giant team and all of our parents asking for food, the waiters and chef were able to get our food out in a great time, still having that quality factor. Overall, I would rate Ruckus Pizza Restaurant a five out of five stars because of the delicious food, and fun dining experience. If you are ever in North carolina, use this website ruckuspizza.com.

Take a deep-dive into one of the best holiday season treats

Madi Pigott 26'
December 6, 2022

If you're a big fan of the delicious holiday flavor of peppermint, and the oh-so original taste of chocolate chunks, then you're going to love Dairy Queen's new seasonal Candy Cane Chill Blizzard. You can find one of these blizzards in Delaware, Ohio. It's a really quick drive for students at Berlin with a distance of only three miles away. Dairy Queen has so many amazing flavors welcome to all!

From the debuts of shakes to Dilly Bars, DQ has a very interesting history. The first Dairy Queen restaurant opened in Joliet, Illinois. The first Blizzard was introduced in 1985. Now, there are over 7,000 Dairy Queens in the U.S.! In 1927 this homemade ice cream company was established and run by the McCullough family.

One of Dairy Queen's famous seasonal treats is the Candy Cane Chill Blizzard. It's one of the most important things on the menu for the holiday season. The crunch of the peppermint along with the big chunks of chocolate makes this the best seasonal treat. I rate this Blizzard a ten out of ten because the two flavors complement each other so well. This sweet treat put me in the holiday spirit and I would definitely eat this again. I really wish there were more chocolate chunks, this would make the wonderful dessert even better.

Dairy Queen is especially unique because of the variety of different treats, flavors, and food. The menu includes everything from burgers to Blizzards. There are always new flavors for every season which is a fan-favorite. These seasonal things obviously only come once a year, so make sure you're always watching out for your favorite treat. But there are a ton of other choices that stay on the menu year-round such as the classic Sundae and the famous Blizzard.

The location of Dairy Queen in Delaware is open from 10:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. At this location, you can dine-in, go through the drive-thru, and mobile order. Another thing Dairy Queen is known for is their amazing sheet cakes, ice cream cakes, and ice cream cupcakes.

Dairy Queen also offers catering options if you need to feed a big group. I would rate the Delaware Dairy Queen location an eight out of ten. The staff at this location sometimes aren't the most welcoming and sometimes are a little slow at preparing your order but I've also had great experiences there and the treats are always very delicious. Call of Duty Warzone 2.0 is a new addition to the massive battle royal video game genre. When the ambitious project Call of Duty Warzone 2.0 was announced to the public in August of 2022, expectations were set very high. The announcement of this game was following the massive success of the original game. Infinity Ward Raven Software, the developers in charge of Warzone 2.0 revealed a grandiose set of new features to be added to the new rendition of this game.

The new game included a new map, a completely new in-death game mode, news systems, and most marketable, the open voice chat system. The people were excited about this new release. The best part of playing the original game for me was the interactions you had with your friends or the other players through voice chat. But then, it was limited to after you eliminated someone in the game. The player you eliminated could talk to you for a few moments. But now, when in close proximity to a player you can talk freely.

This new feature is called proximity chat. With this new edition, the game I once thought I would never play, came into my radar. I was very interested in what could come out of this new game. Upon initial release, all these features that were promised were delivered. But, these features underwhelmed me and felt incomplete.

The proximity in-game chat was the feature I thought was most appealing. My previous experience with this feature from other games was very positive. But, when I loaded into my first match, it was disappointing and seemed rushed. It was clearly a lazy and unfulfilled system. To describe it further, it did work as promised, but the proximity chat worked differently than most games with this feature.

In games like Rust, the volume of the voice that came from the players was determined by the distance between them. The farther away in the game you are, the less noise the other player hears. It reflects how sound works in real life. It also works the same with walls, sound has a harder time traveling through. This system in Rust was great. It made the game for everyone that played it, especially me. Warzone 2.0 needed more from this feature. The proximity chat worked nothing like other games. There was no change in volume, as long as you were in a range you could hear someone completely. This annoyed me really quickly. People just talking at a normal volume can be so loud you can't hear anything else in the game. To me, this is lazy game design and limits the enjoyability of the feature.

Call of Duty Warzone 2.0 falls short of community expectations

By Brenin Beaver 26'

This new game mode is called DMZ. The point of this mode is to get into the game, gather money and equipment, then get out as soon as possible. The concept of this mode is very similar to other games, notably, Escape From Tarkov. The idea of this kind of mode fascinated me. What would it be like on release? Would this even be fun? Is it going to feel right for this type of game? All questions I had. These would all be answered with negative responses.

This game mode just made me feel unrewarded. Nothing really drove me to play it more than a couple of times. When I completed the objective in that match, I didn't feel anything. What did I gain? A rank? No. Something I needed to progress in the game? No. I could see this mode being fun for some select people. One of those people is not me. Even though I have been talking mostly in a negative way, there are some wonderful and enjoyable parts to this game.

This game retains the amusement and entertainment parts from the previous edition of this game. There is seamless gameplay, beautiful graphics, and a pace that really engages most. My gripes with this game come from Infinity Ward Raven Software failing to meet my expectations. The game is still fun but there are a lot of failures that bring down the game from reaching its full potential.

I would definitely recommend for anyone interested in other Call of Duty games check this one out, it wasn't fully my cup of tea, but I could see it really good for a certain type of audience. I would give Call of Duty Warzone 2.0 a 6/10. It is not a bad game by any means but, it is far from perfect. It is definitely a step up from the previous edition of this game, but it is just above average. For more information check out the Infinity Ward Raven Software website.

Take a look at "Wednesday"

By Vidisha Patel '26

The TV show "Wednesday" has become a big hit on Netflix. The show has been number one in the US for about a week. The series is a coming of age supernatural comedy horror TV show. "Wednesday" is directed by Tim Burton and the star of the show is Jenna Ortega who plays Wednesday Addams. Burton was very involved in the show, even with the tiniest bit details on the show.

Wednesday Addams is a 15 year old girl. She is the daughter of Morticia And Gomez Addams. Just like her mom, she has visions that can show her the past. Many people warn her to not trust her visions because they can only show one side of the story.

"Wednesday" takes place at Nevermore Academy, where her parents Morticia and Gomez Addams first met. Everyone at Nevermore Academy have special powers and the people who don't have powers are called normies. She meets many people at the school including her very colorful roommate Enid Sinclair who is played by Emma Myers. As she starts going to Nevermore Academy many of her classmates get murdered. Wednesday tries to find who the murderer but the sheriff accused her of being the murderer.

During the show Wednesday develops feelings for a boy named Tyler Galpin, played by Hunter Doohan. He works at the local coffee shop. Wednesday and Tyler have amazing chemistry together. He tries to help her find who is murdering all the students.

The show was very enjoyable. If you liked "The Addams Family" movies then you would like this show as well. I feel that "Wednesday" should get a five out of five stars because the show included the detail that you would want in a show that wouldn't be found in other types of shows. Even though the show had amazing detail it wouldn't be suitable for all ages. It wouldn't be for all kids because the rating is TV-14 for violence.

"Wednesday" was filmed over the course of eight months in Romania. The show is a Netflix Original series which means you can only watch it on Netflix. The series has eight episodes that are about 47-59 minutes long.

Blocking out the noise with the Apple Airpods (3rd Generation)

By: Sanjana Swarna 25'

Have you ever wanted all the noise to disappear around you? Well lucky for you with the new and improved Apple Airpods (3rd Generation) you can! These wireless earbuds made by Apple include noise cancellation, spatial audio, water and sweat resilience, etc. The price range for the Apple Airpods is between $169-$179 which is higher price than the SAMSUNG Galaxy Buds Live True Wireless Earbuds that cost $100 and also have noise cancellation, but aren't water resilient like the Apple Airpods. I personally bought the Apple Airpods because they have a reset button on back of their case which the SAMSUNG Galaxy Buds Live True Wireless Earbuds don't have.

Apple originally released the Airpods on Oct. 26, 2021. The package includes a Lightning Charging Case or the MagSafe Charging Case, two wireless earbuds, and three different silicone ear tip sizes (Small, Medium, and Large) to suit your ears. The Lightning Charging Case isn't able to charge on a wireless charger but the MagSafe Charging Case can. Both cases charging last up to 6 hours and 30 hours if the case is charged completely. Both earbuds have a force sensor which you can press to pause, play, or skip through audios. You can even answer or end calls! The earbuds have a total of six types of audio settings. Once in your phone and hold down on your volume bar you're able to control Noise Control which is where you can turn off noise cancellation, active Transparency, or completely block out all the noise around you with Noise Cancellation. On the right side of the volume bar you're able to control Spatialize Stereo which is where you can choose to have Fixed or Head Tracked audio and if you don't want either one you can turn it off.

I would rate this product a 9 out of 10 due to the product not withholding the expectation of being sweat resilient while I worked out. On the other hand they're very good at detecting when you connect them and their Noise Cancellation is flawless! For more information please visit, apple.com.

Bicycle Cards: still amazing after 150 years

By: Ian Miller '26

Since the late 1800s, the United States Playing Card Company has released Bicycle Playing Cards, for many people's enjoyment. With Ohio roots and heavily available in stores and websites, they are just a click or trip away for many Berlin students. However, do they deserve the hype?

The United States Playing Card Company was founded in 1867 in Norwood, Ohio. Originally it served as a firm that printed theatrical and circus posters as well as placards and labels. Then, in 1881, the company released their first deck of cards. As popularity grew, the company decided to call their cards "Bicycle" as bicycles had become extremely popular in America.

Today, the company sells over 100 million decks of cards each year and has countless different editions of cards. There are the classics: Bicycle Red and Blue Standard cards, along with unique designs such as Bicycle Stargazer cards and Bicycle Ghost cards.

By far, the most popular are the red and blue decks. I rate these cards five out of five stars because they are flexible, easy to handle, and pleasing to the eye. The simple color of red or blue looks great. They also have a unique white border along the edge, which separates them from other cards like Bee Cards. The cards also don't wear out easily, I had a deck for four years. The cards sell at Walmart for around $3-4.

Another edition, Bicycle Stargazer cards, have to be the coolest cards I have ever owned. I rate these cards four out of five stars because they have an amazing back design. The design looks like a galaxy with an abstract "S" in the mix. The card quality is also great. I have had my deck for around four years and they are still good to use.

The only downside to the cards is the face design. They are too dark for me. When you play cards, the faces are barely readable. However, overall the cards are of high quality, with a cool back design. The cards typically sell for $6-7 on Amazon.

Bicycle Playing Cards are vastly available at many stores including Kroger, Walmart, and Meijer. In addition, they are available for order on websites like Amazon. They are easy to get and are well worth it. For more information visit bicyclecards.com.

Lews Reels are the Best

By Tucker Mularcik

If you are serious or even just starting to fish then the Lews speed spool baitcast reel might be the right reel for you. They are very accessible because you can find them at almost any store that sells fishing equipment like Cabelas or Public Lands. They are very reliable and they last forever. I have had the same reel for over four years and I have never had anything wrong with it. The reels are one of the smoothest and fastest reels that you can buy. You can't beat the Lews speed spool baitcast reel for the price.

They aren't super expensive but they are a little pricey with a price of 99 dollars. They can be a little hard to learn to use at first but once you get the hang of it you will love it. Overall I would rate the reel a five out of five stars.

There are other nice reels that are around the price of 99 dollars but nothing beats the Lews speed spool baitcaster. The Shimano SLX baitcasting reel is around the same price as the Lews reel but the Lews reel is way better because the SLX doesn't have the same buttery feeling that the Lews reel has. Even though the SLX is ten dollars cheaper it is worth it to spend the extra money.

Retro Bowl dazzles as it attempts to bring the '80s glory back

By Ishan Chahande '26

In 2020, British-based game app developer New Star games released Retro Bowl, as an arcade-style throwback game, comparable to the Tecmo Bowls of the past. This game has garnered high reviews, so I decided to review it today.

I decided to play it on its iOS version, however there are Android, browser, and Nintendo Switch versions, all similar in style. The game operates under a “freemium” format, as you can play it for free, but you can buy the “Unlimited Version” for $0.99.

The game operates under a 8-bit style, as it feels like a modern version to a classic arcade game. While it not may be realistic, it provides a fun counterpart to more realistic games like Madden '23.

Gameplay-wise, when you open the game, you are greeted by an opening menu, with a max of five saved files, which you can use. Once you open your files, you are greeted with a complicated menu, one which may rival Madden. While it may be complicated, it is quick to learn.

On the bottom left, there is a settings button. When opened, it includes a multitude of settings relating to the gameplay. These settings can be adjusted to fit the gameplay style that fits you.

When you play a game, the gameplay settings are simple. At the play screen, you can either press the running back to run the ball, or to throw, slide your finger back to aim to find a receiver. Once you have found the receiver, you can release your finger. You can swipe your finger left and right to maneuver those directions, and you can swipe forward to dive/slide. While the tools are simple to learn, there is no guidance from the game of how use the game controls.

At the main home screen, you can control your coaches and your players. Through an in-game currency token, you can upgrade your stadium, coaches, and facilities. The better they are, the better your team is.

For your team, you can have a max of 10 players, which include players on offense, defense, and a kicker. Each player has a different rating from half a star to five stars. If a player performs well, they can get an upgrade.

This is the Retro Bowl home screen. The team you control will hope to win the “Retro Bowl”.

Each player also has a personal morale level within the team. The happier they are, the better the team performs.

All together, the game is well made, as the gameplay is smooth and understandable, but has a few technical issues. I would say the game deserves four stars out of five.

The game is also accessible to most which makes is nice for all. That makes it deserves a full five out of five stars. Specs-wise, the game is smooth, as it doesn't crash often. It doesn't also drain a lot of battery. However, with only five save files, it might put a strain on some players. In specs, I would say it deserves a four star rating out of five.

Together, I would say that Retro Bowl is a fun game that can be enjoyed by all. That's why I believe the game overall deserves four and a half stars out of five.

Many people enjoy Retro Bowl's retro-classic gameplay.
